

Double Spin Roulette

Double Spin Roulette

The Double Spin option is an add-on to a standard Roulette game. Players place their bets in the normal manner. If they have a straight-up bet on the winning number, they may nominate a chip equivalent to the table minimum, for a Double Spin by forfeiting the pay out on that chip and letting it ride. If the number repeats, the chip nominated for a double spin is paid at 1,250 to 1.

Player's Guide

The Aim of the Game

The object of a Double Spin bet is to wager that the next winning number will be the same as the current one. The game play is the same as the standard Roulette game.

Double Spin Bets

Once the winning number is announced, the dealer will clear the layout of all losing bets and pay any winning outside chance bets.

Before the dealer pays any inner layout bets, the dealer will ask any player who has a straight up bet on the winning number if they would like to nominate a chip for the Double Spin bet.

The dealer will then remove the nominated chip and place it in the Double Spin cup before any payouts are made. The value of the Double Spin bet is equivalent to the minimum bet on a straight up.

Double Spin Payouts

If a player has placed a Double Spin bet and the winning number is the same as the previous winning number, the Double Spin bet will be paid at odds of 1,250 to 1.
